

Historic Headlines

1. Download or print the Newspaper Template from the Never Such Innocence 'Conflict Through the Ages' Activity Page:
<https://www.neversuchinnocence.com/conflict-through-the-ages-activities>
2. Next, choose from one of the following prompts, or think of your own.
  - Imagine you are writing for a German newspaper at the end of the First World War. How do you break the news of Germany's defeat to your country?
  - It's the day after the Battle of Hastings. What key facts will the general public want to know?
  - Write some tips for surviving the Blitz in London during the Second World War.
  - You are a reporter for the Roman Army during the Punic Wars. You have just witnessed an elephant being used in combat for the first time. How will you share the news?
  - Your country has just been divided by a new border. Families are split up and there are thousands of refugees. How will you choose to cover such a historic moment?
  - It's the end of the Second World War. Imagine you are a journalist writing for a local newspaper in your hometown. What impact has the war had on your community? Is the mood happy, sad, or something completely different?
  - You are writing the Art Section of the newspaper. Talk about the unveiling of the Bayeux Tapestry showing scenes from the Battle of Hastings.
  - You are recognising soldiers of the Second World War. Tell some of their stories using information from the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.
3. Now it's time to create your front page! Make sure to include the year, a headline, some key information and a picture (try drawing this yourself).
4. Finally, your finished front page can be entered into the Never Such Innocence competition! See here for more info: <https://www.neversuchinnocence.com/2019-20-competition>
